10 YouTube Channels for Early Learners

1. The Learning Station – The Learning Station has tons of fun, active videos for kids to sing along with! My Kindergarteners started the year off with “Clean Up Is Fun” and we also love moving to some of their seasonal songs, like “Scarecrow, Scarecrow.”
2. Jack Hartmann – Jack Hartmann quickly became a favorite part of our calendar/math meeting routine with his “Let’s Get Fit/Count to 100” song! With songs for counting, rhyming, the alphabet, and more – he has tons of fun videos to use with your children or students!
3. Brainzy Games by Education.com – I was introduced to this channel when I stumbled upon “Super E has the power” in the spring. I was looking for some fun songs to teach CVCe words to my class, and they loved that song! This channel also has more alphabet songs, shape songs, and sight word songs.
4. Super Simple Songs – This channel is wonderful for preschoolers and my Kindergarteners LOVED it. I would play it at the end of the day pickup time, so when they were done cleaning up they could come to the carpet and sing along. There are many familiar songs on this channel, but with different twists and fun video. It definitely keeps their attention! Our favorite was this playlist that started with Twinkle Twinkle Little Star.
5. KidsTv123 – This channel has everything from the fun Animal Sounds Song that my class loved, to Phonics Songs!
6. Have Fun Teaching – Have Fun Teaching has tons of videos for a variety of skills! This channel is great for 1st graders (and higher) too, especially for its skip counting videos. This channel also has some great science videos that are fun to add to your collection!
7. Little Baby Bum – While this name does sound a little funny and like it is a channel just for babies, I can assure you my Kindergarteners enjoyed some of these videos! This channel is especially great for nursery rhymes – my kids loved singing along and watching the video, and I would often incorporate it into a quick quiet time/brain break, or use it at the end of the day during clean up.
8. Pancake Manor – Pancake Manor is great for preschoolers – it has a ton of videos about shapes, colors, and familiar nursery rhymes! One of my favorites at the very beginning of the year was one of their Shapes Songs.
9. Maple Leaf Learning – This is another channel that is great for preschoolers. It has many songs that focus on colors, foods, body parts, and more. I love the section of videos about prepositions!
10. Harry Kindergarten Music – Harry Kindergarten is so fun, and certainly doesn’t have to be just for Kindergarteners! His “When You Add With A Pirate” song is great for math, as well as “Left and Right Robot” for learning direction!
